

2-Year Study Led To Crawford Move

Clyne Crawford, president of the Crawford Furniture Manufacturing Company, said today that his decision to withdraw from his display at the Furniture Manufacturers Building in Jamestown was one reached after a study of about two years. He explained that he had a high regard for the Jamestown Furniture Market and said the service at the Jamestown building had always been outstanding.

He said that his study had shown him that because of the nature of his business his sales efforts could be devoted to a better advantage by other means.

SEP 25 1953