

Kling Factories Completes New Warehouse At Mayville

Kling Factories, Mayville furniture manufacturers, today announced that a new warehouse has been completed and is now in use. The new building, built by Kling, will increase Kling's usable warehouse space by 170 per cent, company officials said.

The new building is attached to the present warehouse site in Mayville.

The main purpose of the building, the company said, is to provide better service to furniture retailers. The larger storage space will make it possible to build and store larger quantities of individual pieces so that shipments can be made direct from stock rather than waiting for a cutting of that line to come through, according to the company.

The company said it expects the added facilities will make possible an expansion in the Kling line and increase the volume at the Mayville plant. Officials said the limited warehouse space in the past has made full production of the plant impossible.
