

Tryouts For LT Comedy Set For Wednesday

Tryouts for the first play of the fall season of the Jamestown Little Theater will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the library of the new LT Hq. building at 18 E. 2nd St.

The first offering is a comedy "Come Blow Your Horn," by Neil Simon. The play is from the author of the highly successful "The Odd Couple" and "Barefoot in the Park" presented last season.

Needed for the cast are six people: three men and three women in the following age groups: early 20s, mid-30s and late 50s.

Also needed will be people to work backstage. Interested persons were invited to the tryouts, by LT officials.

This is the final play on last season's tickets. It will be presented at the Scottish Rite Auditorium late in October. Marshall B. Dahlin will direct. The ticket campaign for the new season will begin following this production.
